This slowdown, B-schools bet big on executive education

Institute Hope to generate more revenue through management development programmes

Recently, Ghaziabad-based Institute of Management Technology (IMT) concluded a programme for the senior management of an international food chain. Within a month, the company asked the institute to conduct another such programme. Through this, and in related ways, the business school is building ties for its management development programmes (MDPs).

MDPs have always been a hit with Indian companies. With the slowdown in the economy, business schools are also placing their bets on MDPs, expecting these to generate more revenues for them, in many cases double.

At Indian Institute of Management (IIM)-Calcutta, for instance, revenue growth from MDPs would touch 30 per cent at the end of this academic year, against 20 per cent in 2008. To widen its reach, the institute has not only launched long-duration management programmes

GRAPHENE The 'miracle material' that could revolutionize our world

What is it?

Graphene is a one-atom thick layer of carbon arranged in a honeycomb lattice. When millions of these are stacked one on top of another they form graphite - a mineral consisting of carbon which is found in pencils.

Graphene was discovered in 2004 at the UK's University of Manchester by physicists Andre Geim and Konstantin Novoselov when they isolated a single-layer of graphene using Scotch Tape before going on to demonstrate its remarkable conductive and resilient properties.

Geim and Novoselov's work earned them the Nobel Prize in physics in 2010 and today researchers are in a race to realize its technical and commercial capabilities.

Is this last scene of Crucifixion too painful, just when it seems that it was done, with some Islamic banners being tacked. The film is so well made that it is not so much of the agit-prop kind as it is of the kind which is alleged to depict the Prophet in a poor light.
